The PDT DrV™ Composite Instruments

The PDT DrV™ 1-2 Composite allows both tips to be used for shaping occlusal anatomy in the composite, with the 2-end having a conical shape that can also be used to create the facial anatomy of the upper central incisors.

The PDT DrV™ 3-4 Composite features wide, and thin, hatchet and hoe blades for applying and compacting composite, excellent for broad surfaces.

The PDT DrV™ 5-6 Composite is used for packing composite. The 5 end is appropriate for even the smallest cavities. The 6 end can be used to shape lingual anatomy of incisors and also to finish packing/smoothing composite surface in posterior teeth prior to occlusal modeling.

The PDT DrV™ 7-8 Composite features a thin and flexible blade with an offset angle to provide better ergonomics for your wrist. Ideal for delicate composite placement in any critical location, including interproximally and sculpting under margins.

When treating periodontal disease, instruments with unique designs and longer shanks are invaluable.
